

A day in the Life

Have your child create this fun “A Day in the Life” circle album. Not only will they have a blast creating it, you’ll have a keepsake that will last a life time. Each page has an area to record the time, activity, and place to write a brief note. The opposite page has a blank spot to attach a photo of each activity.

Supplies:

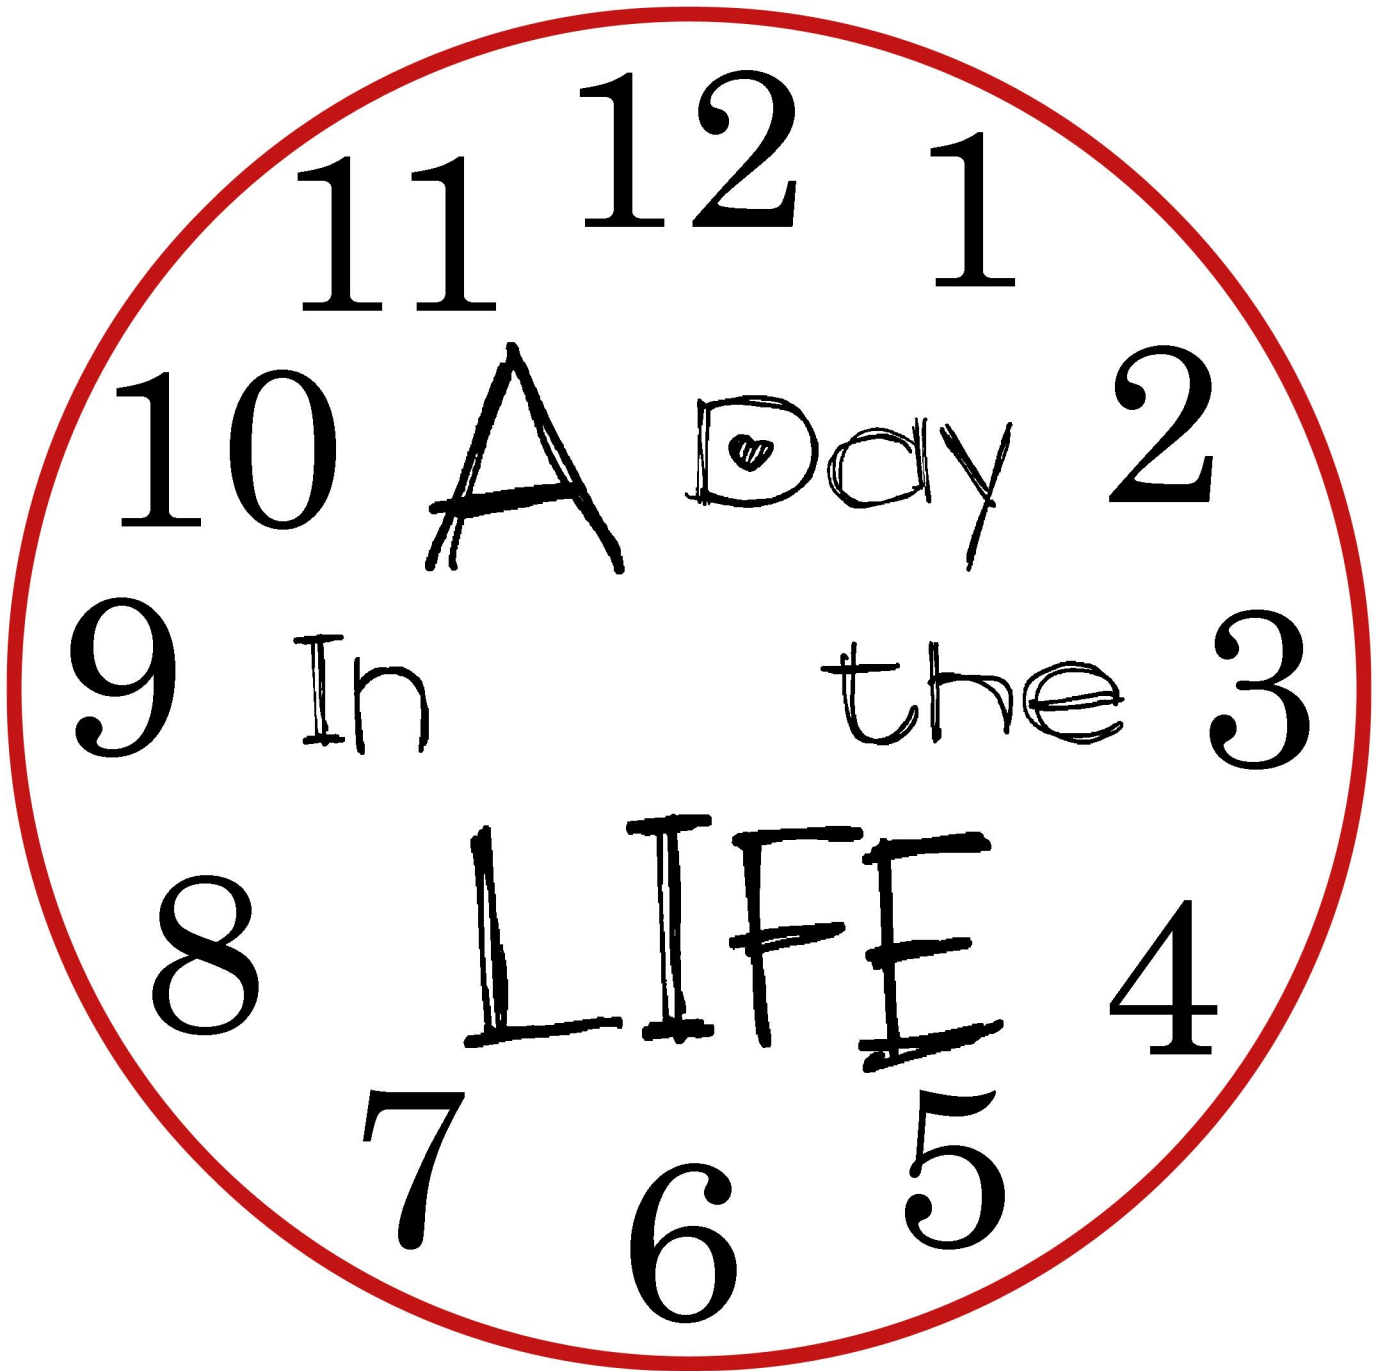

- Printed album pages included in these instructions
- Coordinating black and red ribbon
- Pattern paper (I used Scenic Route’s Surprise Collection)
- 2 eyelets (optional)
- A small office ring
- clock hands kit Available for around $2 at any craft store
- A brad to attach clock hands

Instructions:

Go on line to www.kmckaydesigns.com and print out the desired number of album pages and album cover. Tip: printing it out on cardstock will make the album sturdier. Cut out each page and cover the back of each album page with patterned paper. This will be the side that you attach a photo. When the pages are completed stack the album and punch a hole in the in the top of the album through all of the pages (the Crop-a-dile works the best. I punched mine between the 10 and 11. Tip: make sure you don’t punch through the text on the inside album pages. Once the holes are punched you can attach an eyelet to the front and back cover if desired. Use the office ring to bind the pages.
